

Simunition conversion kits are specialized, easy-to-install firearm modifications (typically involving a conversion barrel, bolt, or bolt carrier assembly) designed for law enforcement and military use. They allow officers to safely fire Simunition FX marking cartridges, reduced-energy, non-lethal rounds that contain a visible marking compound, from their own duty weapons, including pistols, rifles, carbines, and shotguns. These kits incorporate important safety features, such as a smaller bore diameter and live-fire exclusion mechanisms, that prevent the chambering or firing of live ammunition while ensuring realistic weapon cycling, recoil, and operation.

The benefits for training are significant, particularly for an academy like ours that not only prepares Blount County deputies but also provides high-quality instruction to officers and recruits from agencies across the state of Tennessee. Simunition enables highly realistic force-on-force scenario training in dynamic environments, such as room clearing, active shooter response, and de-escalation exercises. Officers experience near-authentic handling characteristics, immediate visual feedback from marking impacts, and the physiological stress of realistic engagements—all without the risks associated with live fire.

This system builds critical muscle memory, improves decision-making under pressure, enhances shot placement assessment, and strengthens overall tactical proficiency in a safe, controlled manner. By training with their actual service weapons, participants develop confidence and skills that transfer directly to real-world situations.

We have found Simunition to be an invaluable tool in elevating the realism and effectiveness of our academy curriculum. It supports safer, more impactful training that ultimately helps protect both our officers and the communities they serve.
